1.3 What are the roles and missions of military, paramilitary and security forces and the police in preventing and combating terrorism in your State?

The role and mission of the Army of Montenegro in the prevention and fight against terrorism is regulated by the National Security Strategy which states that the Army may engage as a support to the Police in combating terrorism.

There are no paramilitary forces in Montenegro and Article 55 paragraph 2 of the Constitution prohibits the establishment of secret, subversive organizations and irregular army.

- Security forces of Montenegro are Army and Police. Their use is regulated by the law.

Army is leading institution in defense and constitutes an armed force defending independence, sovereignty and state territory of Montenegro, contributing to the building and preservation of international peace in line with principles of international law that regulate the use of force. The Army supports civilian authorities in natural or manmade disasters and can be engaged as support to the police in combating terrorism.

Police provides general, personal and security of property and protection of citizens. The police are leading institution in internal security, performing activities related to prevention and suppression of all forms of crime, especially of organized crime and corruption, protection of human rights, supervision and control of state border, securing public peace and order, security of citizens and traffic. It is leading institution in combating terrorism, proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, corruption and drugs.

Forces for action in emergency situations are organized as a part of integrated response to emergency situations caused by natural, ecological, technical-technological (manmade), chemical, biological, nuclear, radiological and other disasters, as well as terrorism consequences and other hazards that might create risks and threats to the security of Montenegro and of the region. Leading institution in emergency situations (hazard management, protection and rescue and elimination of consequences in emergency situations) is a ministry responsible for internal affairs.

1.4 Provide any additional relevant information on national efforts to prevent and combat terrorism, e.g., those pertaining inter alia to:

- Financing of terrorism;
- Border controls;
- Travel document security;
- Container and supply chain security;
- Security of radio active sources;
- Use of the Internet and other information networks for terrorist purposes;
- Legal co-operation including extradition;
- Safe havens and shelters to terrorists and terrorist organizations.

- Terrorism in Montenegro is sanctioned by the Criminal Code that recognizes the following criminal acts: terrorism, international terrorism, hostage taking and terrorism financing, which has brought the Montenegrin criminal legislation in line with the European Convention on the for the Suppression on Terrorism and the United Nation Convention on the Suppression of the Financing of Terrorism. With a view to preventing suspicious financial transactions, Montenegro passed the Law on the Prevention of Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing and the pertinent sublegal acts necessary for its implementation. In addition, the Administration for the Prevention of Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing was established and it represents the financial intelligence agency of an administrative type. This status was further detailed and formalized with the signing of the cooperation agreement with the Police Administration, the Customs Administration, the Tax Administration, the Central Bank of Montenegro, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the State Audit Institution and the basic courts. The requisite international cooperation was supported by cooperation agreements with financial intelligence agencies in the region that provide detailed accounts of the method of exchange of financial intelligence between the financial intelligence in the regional and further. The efforts and work of the Administration for the Prevention of Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing have been internationally verified by full membership of the Egmont Group, the international association of financial intelligence units. Representatives of the Administration participate in the work of all Egmont working groups which, in addition to a simplified and safe exchange of information, contribute to sharing the latest achievements and practices in the organization of the fight against money laundering and terrorism financing. After membership in the Egmont Group and Moneyval, on 2nd June 2010 the APMLFT was given an observer status in the Euroasian group-EAG. Admission of Montenegro in the EAG group created favorable conditions for more intensive exchange of financial intelligence information and in particular with the members of the EAG Group that are not the members of the Egmont Group.

In its work, the Administration for the Prevention of Money Laundering is governed by standards set forth in EU Directives and Council of Europe and OSCE recommendations. With regard to the exchange of information, the Police Administration membership of the INTERPOL represents another key element for efficient and systematic fight against organized crime and accompanying effects.

List of terrorists is delivered to reporting entities and is published on the Web site of APMLFT.

One of the priorities in the fight against terrorism and organized crime is successful protection of borders, monitoring the flow of people and goods across land and sea borders, as well as the modernization of travelling documents and computer and intelligence connecting with a view to exchanging information in this field. This gave rise to initiating the so-called "smart borders" concept that would enable a free and fast flow of people and goods, but simultaneously implying the strengthening of security measures by introducing biometric indicators on passports and visas that would be stored in the common regional computer system. This would create the conditions for the suppression of cross-border crime and terrorism. Aware of the importance of such practical solutions, the Montenegrin authorities have started with the creation of the legal-technical solutions necessary for the use of identity documents prepared on the basis of the biometric technology. This project is expected to be finished by March 2008.

At end-2003, the Montenegrin police forces took over the authority of Montenegro border security from the Army of Serbia and Montenegro. With a continuous international assistance and support, Montenegro has been improving its capacities for a successful performance of this task, especially through cooperation with the relevant border authorities of all neighboring countries. The ultimate objective is the establishment of the system of integrated border management. Thus, Montenegro attended the regional meeting of representatives of National Authorities for the prohibition of chemical weapons was held in Sarajevo in October 2007. The discussions held at the meeting involved the exchange of experiences in the field of the regime and control of the export and import of chemical substances and the possibilities for joint determination of border crossings which would be used for the transit of such substances.

In the operational sense, a Department for combating organized crime was formed within the Criminal police, and the Special antiterrorist unit within the Ministry of Internal Affairs has existed for some time now and is completely ready to face this kind of problem should it appear in the country or the region. The Centre for fighting drugs and smuggling has also been established. As for participating in international fight against organized crime, the Police Administration has signed numerous agreements and established cooperation with counterparty authorities, particularly those of the neighboring countries and the region. The Police Administration is an active participant in all international and regional projects and conferences aimed at strengthening police cooperation among countries of the region and Europe in the fight against all forms of crimes. An important step further has been made in the reorganisation of the National Security Agency in making it into a reference intelligence agency, as well as the transformation of the former Military Security Service into the Department for defensive-security operations for communication and crypto-protection, and the forming of the Department for information-security and technical support of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Montenegro.

2. Stationing of armed forces on foreign territory

2.1 Provide information on stationing of your States armed forces on the territory of other participating States in accordance with freely negotiated agreements as well as in accordance with international law.

- Montenegro is determined to contribute to the building and preservation of peace on the regional and global level. During decision making process on the participation in international peace and humanitarian operations, the following is taken into account: international-legal basis of the mandate, integration objectives of Montenegro, available resources, location of hotspot and influence on the national security.

3.2 Provide information on how your State pursues arms control, disarmament and confidence- and security-building measures with a view to enhancing security and stability in the OSCE area.

- Foreign and security policy of Montenegro is directed to developing good neighbourly relations and strengthening regional cooperation with the objective to establish confidence and to promote peace in South East Europe, as well as membership in international and regional organizations.

Montenegro believes that small countries can best provide and solve their own security by accessing the system of collective security.

Montenegro actively participates and contributes to stability and security in the region and Euro-Atlantic community by being actively engaged in regional initiatives and processes and through bilateral and multilateral cooperation with partners and Allies.

Montenegro attaches great importance to arms control, disarmament and confidence and security-building measures in the OSCE region and contributes to enhancing security and stability in the region thru realization of obligations and commitments of regional arrangements and agreements, such as:

1) Agreement on subregional arms control – Montenegro, along with Serbia, Croatia, Bosnia and Herzegovina actively participates in the implementation of the Agreement which is aimed at building transparency and confidence and also at achieving balanced and stable defense force levels at the lowest numbers. Successful implementation of the Agreement is overseen by the Subregional Consultative Commission, and is ensured by conducting mutual inspections and exchange of relevant information. Montenegro gives significant contribution by conducting and receiving more inspections (quotas) than Agreement envisages (three quotas instead of one).

2) Vienna document – Montenegro thoroughly implements obligations under the Vienna document by exchanging military information and by receiving three inspections of the specific area on the annual basis and one evaluational visit. Within the framework of the document, Montenegro also conducts visits to the air bases of different participating countries.

With regard to Vienna document, Montenegro has bilateral agreements with Germany, Hungary and Greece that help further enhancement of stability and cooperation in the region (e.g. exchange of experiences and expertise thru meetings which are organized regularly).

3) Open Skies Agreement – Montenegro is not yet a member of this Agreement. However, Montenegro gives its contribution and participates in this instrument thru organizing training missions (last year a training mission was conducted in Montenegro with the support from Hungary and Germany). This year Montenegro will organize another training mission in cooperation with RACVIAC (with Hungary as a leader of the mission).

Montenegro is also implementing projects in the field of demilitarizing and destruction of stockpiles of conventional and other types of weapons. These projects are conducted in close cooperation with donor countries (USA, Great Britain) and international organizations (OSCE, NATO).

Montenegro is a small country, both regarding its area and population, yet having a very important geostrategic position. Although economically encumbered by being a country in transition, Montenegro is doing everything possible to contribute to overall security, both at the regional and global levels.
